The Czar Declares His Resolve to Execute the Berlin Treaty.

The Condition of Affairs in Russia Terrible Beyond Description.

Parole Wins the Chester Handicap Stakes at Cheshire.

THE EAST.

EXECUTION OF THE TREATY.
Constantinople, May 8.—The czar in a letter brought by Gen. Obrutschef, declares his firm resolve to execute the provisions of the treaty, but he thinks the Turks should refrain from garrisoning the Balkans for a year, though they might garrison Bourgas.

The Russian evacuation of Eastern Roumelia is likely to be completed by the 8d of July.

ARRIVAL OF THE AMEREE.

Sims, May 8.—The ameer of Afghanistan arrived at Gundamok today. He was met at the frontier by Maj. Caragnani and a detachment of the 10th huzars and guides. British troops of all arms lined the route to the camp, two and a half miles. Gen.
Brown and staff received the ameer at the end of the line, and a salute of twenty-one guns was fired.

The ameer has announced his arrival to the viceroy of India, and expressed a desire for the establishment of friendly relations between India and Afghanistan.

A LITTLE "TAFFY."

London, May 8.—At dinner on the czar's birthday, at Therpsis, Gen.
Stoltyhin spoke of South Bulgaria, so-called, East Roumelia. He proposed as one toast "The health of South Bulgaria," and as another "To the Slavonic nations."

EPIDEMIC.

An outbreak of spotted typhus fever has occurred in Astrachan.

GREAT BRITAIN.

London, May 8.—Parole has retrieved his loss of the Chester trades cup race yesterday by winning that for the great Chester handicap stakes which took place yesterday, being the last of the Cheshire meetings. Lord Duddin's four-year-old chestnut gelding Reefer, which won the Chester trade cup, got the second place, and Lord Leigh's four-year-old bay colt Sir Joseph third. There were eight starters. Parole carried 134 pounds, and Reefer and Sir Joseph 118 pounds each. The distance of the course is nearly a mile and a quarter. The race was for three-year-olds and upwards.

HEAVY FAILURE.

The old-established bank of Swaine, Clough & Co., Cork, Ireland, known as the Cork Bank, has suspended;
note circulation £46,887.

FINANCIAL.

London, May 8.—At the bank of England bullion was withdrawn today to the amount of £50,000.

Bullion decrease in the Bank of England this week, £18,000. Proportion of reserve to liability, 5 1/16 percent.

SWITZERLAND.

ABUSES TO BE SUPPRESSED.
Geneva, May 8.—In consequence of abuses by emigration agents, the federal council proposes they be compelled to take out licenses and deposit 60,000 francs each security for good behavior.

RUSSIA.

A CRITICAL STATE OF AFFAIRS.
Bucharest, May 8.—Private accounts from Russia represent the situation all over that country as beyond description and that the tendency of the so-called repressive measures is toward revolution rather than peace.

CRIME & CASUALTY.

A Destructive Fire To-day at Portsmouth, N. H.

A Highly Dramatic Scene in a Georgia Court Room.

A Sickening Accident in the Tremont House Elevator
at Chicago.

Two Friends at Burlington, Ia., Commit Suicide Simultaneously.

CRUSHED BY AN ELEVATOR.
Chicago, May 8.—About 11.30 last night, as the elevator in the Tremont House was leaving the second floor and descending, Mrs. Henry Lightner, of Peoria, who had just left it, by some unaccountable means slipped and fell, and her head coming between the floor and the descending arm of the elevator, was crushed so terribly that the lady died in a few minutes thereafter. The proprietors of the house were very reticent, and the facts could only be learned early this morning, and the whole truth will probably come out for the first time before the coroner's jury. Mr. Lightner was with his wife at the time, but unable to do anything, so quickly was the accident over.

SOCIALISM.

Rumor of a General Strike to be Inaugurated July 5th.

All the Trades Unions to Participate.

Chicago, May 8.—The socialist leaders here assert that they, with the trades unions, are organizing a strike to begin July 5th, and to be general throughout the country. They will demand the universal adoption of the eight hour system, and will settle the matter of wages after their demands are acceded to.
This strike has been decided on in their privy councils but is no secret.
Their purpose is political in its nature and the purpose of the workmen is to secure better wages.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Electoral Returns.

San Francisco, May 7.—The election in the city has been conducted with the greatest vigor by both parties.
There was an almost total suspension of business, and the best men in the city have been in constant attendance at the polls. The vote is very heavy, probably over 40,000. Opponents of the new constitution are confident that it has been defeated in the city by 10,000 to 12,000 majority. While something must probably be allowed for sanguine feeling, there is no doubt that there is a majority against its adoption. Advice from the country indicate large majorities against it in the populous counties of Alameda, Santa Clara, Sacramento and others, but not enough have been received to warrant any estimate as to the general result.

San Francisco, May 8.—Returns of the election, as far as the count has progressed, prove a complete surprise.
The city, instead of giving 10,000 or thereabouts against the new constitution, gives a majority of less than 2,000, with the returns nearly complete.
Returns from the country are incomplete, but indicate that while Alameda, Sacramento, Santa Clara and most of the mining counties have gone against, nearly all the other agricultural counties have gone for it. As far as now heard from, the city and state stand 5,300 in favor of adoption, with a chance of that majority being materially increased. A disturbance was feared in the city early in the evening, but soon quieted down, merely a few fights occurring. Workingmen are jubilant over what they consider their own particular victory.

LATER.

San Francisco, May 8.—The total vote of the city is 37,934; majority against the constitution, 1,238. No return returns from the interior.

Found Dead.

[Special to the Sentinel.]

Bluffton, Ind., May 8.—A man named Richard Blake, supposed to be from Fort Wayne, was found dead on one of our principal streets this morning. It is believed he was a victim of foul play.

Obituary.

Terr Haute, May 7.—Gen. Geo. K.
Steele, for many years a prominent republican in Indiana politics, and who represented Park County a long time in the legislature, died this morning, 70 years.

Prize Fight.

Buffalo, May 8.—A prize fight between Elliott and Dwyer, both of Brooklyn, is reported to have taken place at Long Point, Canada, to-day.
No particulars.

Wirelings.

Secretary Sherman to-day visited the state officers and legislature at Columbus and left at noon for Washington.

Several Wilkesbarre coal mines, long idle, are resuming operations.

Vanderbilt and party left Detroit to-day for the east.

Very Rev. Lawrence McMahon, of Providence, has been appointed bishop of Hartford.

A committee of medical experts having examined Mark Gray, who shot at Booth, report that he is insane.

The international cricket match at New York resulted in the defeat of the American team. Score, 263 to 84.

as the present annoyances and out- rageous oppression of all classes of population are rapidly spreading the feeling that anything is preferable to the existing state of affairs. It is asserted that the government is really playing the game of nihilists instead of crushing out the spirit of discontent in the empire.

FRANCE.

FINANCIAL.

Paris, May 8.—Specie in the bank of France has increased 18,125,000 francs in the past week.

CONVICTED.

Paris, May 8.—The sections of the council of state have unanimously decided that Mgr. Forcade, archbishop of Aix, is guilty of a violation of the law in having issued a pastoral attacking Jules Ferry's educational bill. It is expected that the general assembly of the council, on the 15th inst., will confirm this decision.

DOUBBLE SUICIDE.

Burlington, Ia., May 8.—Two young men, August Miller and John Miller, friends but not relatives, attempted suicide this morning. The former was successful, having used a pistol, and the latter used a knife with probably fatal effect. They lived in different parts of the city, and it is not known whether they had a mutual understanding.

THE GEORGIA MURDER—A HEART-

RENDING SCENE.

Atlanta, May 7.—The jury in the Cox case was out all night, and came out at noon to-day to be recharged in full. At a quarter to 4 o'clock they came in and announced that a verdict had been agreed upon. After being detained to correct an informality, the verdict was read, as follows:

"We, the jury, find the prisoner guilty, and recommend that he be punished by imprisonment for life in the penitentiary."

Cox received the verdict with calmness, having evidently nerves himself for the worst.

His wife, on hearing the word so fatal to her hopes, sat for a moment trembling with emotion, and then rushed for an open window near by with the purpose of throwing herself to the ground, for she was wild with grief. As she reached the window she was caught by Cox, who held her fast.
She threw her arms around his neck and clung to him, wildly exclaiming,
"Oh, my God! Oh, my poor darling!"

Her shrieks were heart-rending, and the occupants of the crowded courtroom could not retain the tears of pity.

Judge Hillyer sentenced Cox to be confined in the penitentiary or such other place as the governor may direct, at hard labor for and during his imprisonment. Gen. Gatrell gave notice that the defense would make a motion for a new trial, and prayed for a writ of supersedeas. Execution of sentence was thereupon stayed twenty days.

This penalty is virtually the extreme of law in this state, as the law passed with Cox case was out all night, and came out at noon to-day to be recharged in full. At a quarter to 4 o'clock they Congressional Summary.

Wednesday, May 1, 1879.—The house will to prevent military interference at elections has read twice and laid on the table. Consideration was resumed of the contested election case of Spofford against Kellogg, and Mr. Carpenter continued his remarks in favor of Kellogg. A long speech was delivered by Mr. Carpenter, in which he said that the committee on elections had been remiss in their duty. Edmunds, Foster, Sandusky, Vorhees, Cenckling, Logan and Blaine, after whom the senate authorized the committee on privilege and elections to take testimony in the case. The military interference bill was again taken up, and Blaine introduced a bill making it an offense punishable by fine of $500 to $5,000 and imprisonment of six months to five years, to carry a concealed weapon within a mile of any place where a general or special election was being held. HOUSE—Mr. Chapman's bill was introduced on the house on the 1st, offered by him asking for an investigation of his conduct at Fort Pillow, in the late war.

The fact is that Mr. HAYES has neither the constitution, nor the laws, nor a majority of the people on his side. A large majority are with the democrats in their efforts to separate the ballot and the bayonet; and to preserve free elections in this country. The New York World prints figures from the official returns which show that the congressmen who voted to sustain Mr. HAYES received 1,810,888 votes, while 1,746,785 votes were cast against them. The congressmen who voted to override Mr. HAYES's veto and maintain free elections, received 1,801,788 votes, while only 1,484,481 votes were cast against them.

genuine government paper for those of large denominations, and that he was able to meet the most delicate test the government could devise. He said that one time he earnestly desired to quit the business, assumed the character of a professor, and lectured on the art of detecting counterfeiting; that he had interviews with treasury officials to point out defects and improvements in government paper, but injured instead of helping himself thereby, as influential men had interests in existing methods; and that he had entered into contract to abandon the business on condition of certain allowances made to his wife for the support of his family. He said this agreement was kept on both sides until congress failed to make appropriations, and that when notified that payments would be delayed he suspected bad faith, and so resumed his operations.

SAVED BY A MULE.

Six Days and Nights Entombed in a Coal Mine.

A concert and lecture was given at Wilkesbarre, Penn., on the evening of the 18th of April, as a plan for the relief of the miners (six men and a boy) who were just safely rescued from an entombment of six days and nights in the Sugar Notch coal mine at that place, caused by the caving in of several acres of the roof. A poor old mule that was a co-worker with the imprisoned miners was slaughtered, and furnished the substance that saved the men from starvation. At the concert a miner named Williams freely described the scenes during the time the men were in the mines, and said that Mr. COLERICK, in his maiden effort in the house, acquitted himself with much credit. He devoted himself especially to those sections of the election law that authorize the appointment of deputy marshals and define their powers, and gave a very graphic and eloquent account of the abuses and outrages that had been committed in the interest of the republican party under this law. Mr. COLERICK quoted copiously from the evidence that was taken by the congressional committee which investigated the workings of this law in New York, Philadelphia and other cities, and paid his respects to JOHN I. DAVENPORT in a most effective manner.

The speech was a very fine one in every respect and gives promise of great usefulness in Mr. COLERICK's congressional career.

PETE MC CARTNEY.

The Life of a Counterfeiter.

(Interview in Indianapolis News.)

McCartney's account of the way in which he was led to enter upon his subsequent career was something like this: When a boy he was employed to work for a gentleman in Mattoon, Ill. Being active and industrious, he became useful to his employer, secured his confidence, and was well treated. When about eighteen years old, he desired to visit some people in the northern part of the state, and notified his employer of his purpose. The gentleman approved, and proposed to furnish him with a team and a small stock of goods, which he might sell and barter, and on his return account for the proceeds and have half the profits. The venture proved successful, and the result satisfactory on both sides. It was on this trip that Pete first conceived the idea of making bogus money. It was at the time the west was flooded with paper money; broken banks were numerous, and small bills abundant. One day, while alone on the prairie, looking over his large stock of one dollar bills, the thought came to him, why should anybody make one dollar bills when it is just as easy to make fives or tens? Thinking how easy it would have been to make money by simply changing the figures, it occurred to him that he might change the figures, and so increase the amount of his property. Pete says that at that time the question of right or wrong in the matter did not occur to him, although it did afterward. Looking upon the paper as money in itself, his reasoning was that it would be a good thing to make more of it by increasing the denominations of the bills. He accordingly began his experiments by carefully scraping out "ones" and pasting "fives" and "tens" over them, cut from bills of broken banks. A few trials satisfied him that it could be done successfully, and his life as a counterfeiter was commenced.

The easy road to wealth opened to his vision made him unwilling to settle down to common labor again, and so, after settling with his employer, he started on his own account. After visiting friends near Covington, he went to Indianapolis, where he first attempted his new trade. Wandering about town, he entered a grocery store on the bank of the canal, made a purchase, and tendered one of his raised notes. On taking it up the grocer observed, "I don't know about that," which, of course, suggested detection; but it proved to be only a question of ability to change, for the money-drawer was opened, a favorable answer given and the money counted out. It is a remarkable fact that the skill of this skillful and notorious deceiver should begin and end in this city.

In answer to questions, he stated that he had been largely engaged in the manufacture of coin before the war; that his first acquaintance with this business was made at Cincinnati. A prominent citizen of that place named Taylor, was the principal. He was a church member and one of the school board, and had his factory out in Walnut Hills. It was here that McCartney first saw his wife, who was then a girl, and whose mother and sister were also engaged in the business. His first attempt at engraving a counterfeit plate was made at a time when he had never been in an engraver's office, and without any instruction in the business. He had seen one Boyd, an engraver, at work on plates, and another counterfeiter also. He was so successful in his first effort that his plate was well sold. Afterward he became very skillful, as is well known. He said that he had invented a machine by which he was able to copy accurately every line on the most elaborate greenback; that he could discharge perfectly the ink and color from small bills and thus secure with a hope that ere long we should be rescued. I never lost confidence, but at times we all felt downcast. We used to make different rounds in the various sections of the mines to ascertain how things stood and if there was any way by which to escape, but found we were blocked on all sides. Our process of cooking was very slow, and each thought it was best to light a fire. This I strongly objected to for some time, but seeing there was a good current of air and no danger of igniting gas, we built a fire, and from this time forward we boiled our meat and drank soup, and continued to do so until rescued.

EXPERIENCE IN THE CLOSED MINE.

I worked by contract, driving the last gangway in the old slope. We worked the gangway on three shifts, and at the time of the caving in I was on the morning shift, or what is generally called the first shift. Edward Price, my partner, and his laborer, Barney Neely, were on the afternoon shift, and John and Patrick Green on the 11 o'clock shift. The reason that I did not come home at the regular time, which is 8 o'clock, was because I stayed to assist my partner, Edward Price, to erect timber at the face of the gangway, and also to stand two sets of relief timbers at about two hundred yards from the face of the gangway. We had just finished this timbering when the boy Clark came with the news that there was about fifty cars of coal and rock fallen on the gangway. There has been a report circulated that we did not pay any attention to the boy when he came with the report. This we contradict, for as soon as we received the intelligence we all went face of the gangway to inform the Green brothers of the state of affairs, and all hurried toward the bottom of the slope. When we had run about four hundred yards we came to a halt, in consequence of pieces of coal falling from the pillars on the gangway and by the roof cracking and thundering sounds like cannon going off. We then came to the conclusion that it was unsafe to proceed any further, for there was every indication that heavy falls might come at any moment.

ALL ESCAPE CUT OFF.

We therefore went back toward the face, but had not proceeded very far when we heard a terrible crash, which cut off all hope of escape by the gangway. Our next thought was whether we might escape through the airway. We therefore began to climb breast after breast, but all our efforts were foiled. We returned to the gangway. Hungry and disappointed, seeing that all hope of escape was cut off, we sat down to contemplate our position, and the whole weight of our misfortune was brought vividly before our minds with all its ghastly features. Out of from fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, wives and children, and all the probabilities that that we might never again see our homes. After reflection we came to the conclusion that although things were bad they might have been worse. Three things were in our favor. First we had good air; next, good water, and third, a live mule which could be eaten; therefore we came to the conclusion that we should not starve for some time any how.

RILLED THE MULE FOR FOOD.

We did not act upon the mule idea, however, for some time, but satisfied the craving of hunger by eating the hinch bark off one of the propes. This satisfied us for nearly a day, when hunger returned with all its fierceness. There was no alternative but to kill the mule. We therefore proceeded to the business of fastening the mule to a prop. We procured a sledge from one of the boxes, and the butchering commenced. John Green was the man selected to dispatch the brute. John's strength had somewhat failed him, I believe, for it took six or eight blows from his hammer before the mule was brought down. Then the work of quartering began in earnest; for he had

MR. COLERICK'S SPEECH.

On the 24th of April, Hon. WALTER G. COLERICK, of this city, delivered a very able speech in the house of representatives when the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was under consideration.

SAVED BY A MULE.

Six Days and Nights Entombed in a Coal Mine.

He then, by the invitation of Charles Hawkins, one of the rescued miners, read from a paper the following history of their experience in the mine. It was quite difficult to follow the reader because of the continuous applause.

Our next thought was whether we might escape through the airway. We therefore began to climb breast after breast; but all our efforts were foiled. We returned to the gangway. Hungry and dispirited, seeing that all hope of escape was cut off, we sat down to contemplate our position, and the whole weight of our misfortune was brought vividly before our minds with all its ghastly features. Cut off from fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, wives and children, and all the probabilities that we might never again see our homes. After reflection we came to the conclusion that although things were bad they might have been worse. Three things were at the time the question of right or wrong in the matter did not occur to him, although it did afterward. Looking upon the paper as money in itself, his reasoning was that it would be a good thing to make more of it by increasing the denominations of the bills. He accordingly began his experiments by carefully scraping out "ones" and pasting "fives" and "tens" over them, cut from bills of broken banks. A few trials satisfied him that it could be done successfully, and his life as a counterfeiter was commenced. The easy road to wealth thus opened to him was unwilling to settle down to common labor again, and so, after settling with his employer, he started on his own account. After visiting friends near Covington, he went to Indianapolis, where he first attempted his new trade. Sauntering about town, he entered a grocery store on the bank of the canal, made a purchase, and tendered one of his raised notes. On taking it up the grocer observed, "I don't know about that," which, of course, suggested detection; but it proved to be only a question of ability to change, for the money-drawer was opened, a favorable answer given and the money counted out. It is a remarkable fact that the skill of this skillful and notorious depraved should begin and end in this city.

In answer to questions, he stated that he had been largely engaged in the manufacture of coin before the war; that his first acquaintance with this business was made at Cincinnati. William Kinney cut the head nearly off with an axe to insure that life was extinct, while I severed the hind quarter with a weapon of the same kind. I instantly commenced cutting rations off the quarter, while the flesh yet quivered. Under other circumstances I should have shrunk from the duty intrusted to me so early, but nothing would satisfy us but mule at that time, for the larder was empty.

KILLED THE MULE FOR FOOD.

We did not act upon the mule idea, however, for some time, but satisfied the craving of hunger by eating the birch bark off one of the props. This satisfied us for nearly a day, when hunger returned with all its fierceness. There was no alternative but to kill the mule. We therefore proceeded to the business of fastening the mule to a prop. We procured a sledge from one of the boxes, and the butchering commenced. John Green was the man selected to dispatch the brute. John's strength had somewhat failed him, I believe, for it took six or eight blows from his hammer before the mule was brought down. Then the work of quartering began in earnest; for he had not more than fallen when William Kinney cut the head nearly off with an axe to insure that life was extinct, while I severed the hind quarter with a weapon of the same kind. I instantly commenced cutting rations off the quarter, while the flesh yet quivered. Under other circumstances I should have shrunk from the duty intrusted to me so early, but nothing would satisfy us but mule at that time, for the larder was empty.

THE CULINARY DEPARTMENT.

We got our dinner kettles ready for a sumptuous feast. We took the lids of our pails and set the steaks upon them, placed three lamps under each lid and the work of frying went on. For a while we had a grand time, for we kept eating and frying, frying and eating; and I tell you, gentlemen, the meat was splendid. One thing I forgot to say, and that is while we were busy killing the mule we heard the first shot fired and this inspired us with a hope that ere long we should be rescued. I never had confidence, but at times we all felt downcast. We used to make different rounds in the various sections of the mines to ascertain how things stood and if there was any way by which to escape, but found we were blocked on all sides. Our process of cooking was very slow, and each thought it was best to light a fire. This I strongly objected to for some time, but seeing there was a good current of air and no danger of igniting and gas, we built a fire, and from this time forward we boiled our meat and drank soup, and continued to do so until rescued.

Fast Superseding.

The Unique perfume of Dr. Price are fast superseding all others. Their fresh, flowery fragrance is admired by all who use them. For an evening party his Alista Bouquet is captivating; while for the parlor, church or concert, his Pet Rose is the most delightful odor.

ALL ESCAPE CUT OFF.

We therefore went back toward the face, but had not proceeded very far when we heard a terrible crash, which cut off all hope of escape by the gangway. Our next thought was whether we might escape through the airway. We therefore began to climb breast after breast; but all our efforts were foiled. We returned to the gangway. LIVER PILLS

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are constipated; sometimes, alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequalled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated. Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression Dr. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING Bros. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

MONROE.

All About a Pleasant Little Village in Adams County—Personal Gossip—Serious Accident, Etc.

[Correspondence of the Sentinel.]

Monroe, Ind., May 7, 1879.—As one of your subscribers I claim the privilege of a small space in the columns of your ever welcome paper. Monroe is just six miles south of Decatur, on the Cincinnati, Richmond and Fort Wayne Railroad, and contains about 800 inhabitants. We claim that this place is the breast-pin of Adams county, filled with beautiful women, men, lumber, staves, dogs, and babies. It is one-half mile deep, and looks heavenward with many a sigh and tear. We also boast of several large men, their latitudinal and longitudinal developments being astonishing. This village contains and supports one drug store, one church, one spoke factory, one mill, one harness factory, one cooper shop, two furniture shops, one blacksmith shop, two physicians, one dentist, several ploughmen, well diggers and many loafers. Such is the village of Monroe—a beautiful, tidy and prosperous place, looking out from a hollow and down the road, lying between two frog ponds. We have a good water power here, horse power, steam power, a Murphy power, a religious power, and a power of democrats, who are in favor of Gov. Hendricks for our next president.

We have plenty of timber for sale and buyers. Our new Methodist minister, Mr. LuEllen, has just arrived with his family. They will remain for one year. Mr. LuEllen, was assigned this place by the late conference to fill the place of Rev. Woolpert, who is now at Inwood station.

John Fry (formerly trustee of Madison township, Allen county), who is now a resident of this place, not with a serious accident a few days ago by having his leg broken while crossing the railroad with a team and sled. Drs. Hunter and Rainier were called and set the broken leg. Mr. Fry will be confined to his room for several weeks.

The woods are full of game, but we do not go for it for fear of violating the law.

We are raising a large club here for the WEEKLY SENTINEL, which is considered the best paper in Indiana.

THE WABASH.

History of the Suits Begun Against the Company—What It Is Doing—Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.

Danville, Ill., May 2.—The telegraphic announcement that another application for a receiver for the Wabash Railroad will be argued at Lewiston, Ill., before Judge Slope, on the 16th, promises to be a sensation in railway circles. This is the fifth suit of the kind which has been brought this spring. A brief history of the circumstances will be interesting.

These suits are being brought by Charles W. Engler, a New York attorney for certain holders of what are known as Toledo, Wabash and Western equipment bonds, which were issued about 1873, for the purchase of rolling stock, and in amount about $600,000. When the Toledo, Wabash and Western went into bankruptcy in 1875, the company defaulted on the interest of these equipment bonds. Instead of foreclosing and taking possession of the rolling stock, as they had an undoubted right to do, White & Bayless and other holders allowed Gov. Cox, the receiver, to retain and use the rolling stock under a fair rental, which he paid regularly, amounting to nearly $70,000 per annum. When the Toledo, Wabash and Western was reorganized into the present Wabash Company, the latter contracted to buy this equipment and to pay in installments, which is being done regularly. There were holders of these equipment bonds, however, who did not consent to a contract with the Wabash Company, and it is this interest which Hasser represents.

Being for an insignificant amount, upon representation of Gen. Swayne, attorney for the Wabash Company, and the filing of a bill in the United States circuit court at Springfield, charging Hasser with conspiracy to injure the property of the Wabash Company, Judge Drummond granted a restraining order upon Hasser, prohibiting him from bringing any more suits. A nice question of law now arises: Will Judge Slope, of Illinois, rule in the Wabash Company's favor? This is the question.
